Editor's note

At this very moment I have just arrived back in the Netherlands after a long trip through Melbourne and Abu Dhabi to Amsterdam and leaving 3 days later again for a week long trip to Albania (one of the countries in Europe we were never able to visit).

So just in time to make the deadline for the October issue of the Echo.

In this Echo we have the last episode of Rex and Greta, who are also in the Netherlands when you read this and actually only 15km away from here in Oosthuizen, while I reside with Gertruuds family in Wognum near Hoorn.

We publish lots of information about what is going on in the Netherlands Society and everything around it. No feature article as I have not been able to visit Alkmaar, but I start with a list of famous people from Alkmaar. The deadline comes just too early to have some up-to-date pictures. So that has to wait another month. The front page photo is therefore a picture of my other 'home town' of Hoorn. Hoorn is another old and interesting town and also worth a special article. I still hope to get some more input from the members as it is more interesting to read the input from various angles. Never think that your contribution is not interesting enough.

Did you try last months recipe? This month the recipe has a Dutch 'expat' theme. It is an Indonesian salad.

President's greeting

Hallo lezer van onze Echo,

Tijdens onze bestuurs vergaderingen, brainstormen we ook over events die jullie - onze leden, familie en iedereen die graag mee wil doen - leuk zullen vinden en ook aan deel willen nemen. Zoals bijvoorbeeld de barbeque, die we hadden gepland op 28 augustus. We hadden ook aan het jongere publiek gedacht: het plan was in de foyer een tv met films te laten draaien, spellen voor de allerjongsten en bean bags om er gezellig "bij te hangen". Helaas was dit allemaal voor niks. Er waren 13 personen die hadden aangegeven van de partij te willen zijn. Dat waren te weinig gegadigden om dit feestje door te laten gaan. Pizza en Plonk was ons volgende event op vrijdag 23 september. Voor deze avond hadden zich genoeg mensen opgegeven, dus die ging wel door. Het is demotiverend voor ons - jullie bestuur - om enthousiast iets op te zetten, om het dan af te moeten blazen. Ik doe dus weer een oproep: als je een idee / plan hebt, neem contact met ons op. Samen kunnen we iets organiseren of helpen je op weg voor een feestje / event. Voor oktober hebben we entertainment verzorgd door Mandy Miller en co. Dit wordt een avond van muziek en dans. Lees alle informatie op pagina 5.

We hebben het al vaker vermeldt, maar er moet weer een herinnering uit: Als je in NSC's gebouw een raam open zet, vergeet niet het ook weer te sluiten. Ondanks het feit dat we veiligheids sloten op ramen hebben laten zetten, heeft dat weinig zin, als we de ramen open laten staan 😊

Als je de afgelopen maand de clubrooms heb bezocht, heb je zeker ook de fundamenteel voor de molen gezien:

Frank van Schaijk en architect Marijn van Herel, hebben ook al contact over de kleuren van de molen, dus houdt een oogje in het zeil. Eind van dit jaar zal het project klaar zijn en op zondag 12 februari 2023 vieren we de officiële onthulling.

In september werd ik uitgenodigd om samen met Honorary Consul for the South Island, Mr Geordie Hooft, Ambassador of the Kingdom of the Netherlands, H.E. Ard M.M. van der Vorst te ontmoeten:

We hebben diverse onderwerpen besproken, waaronder natuurlijk ook de Nederlandse gemeenschap en NSC. De ambassadeur gaf aan een persoonlijke ontmoeting met de Nederlanders in onze gemeenschap zeer op prijs te stellen. Hij zou graag de verhalen van diegenen die kort na de oorlog naar Nieuw Zeeland emigreerden willen horen, en ook met de jongere generatie van gedachten wisselen hoe zij Nieuw Zeeland ervaren. Zoals we in de Echo hebben geschreven, zal H.E. Ard M.M. van der Vorst op 15 november tijdens de pop-up desk ochtend, ook aanwezig zijn. Hierna wil hij graag onder het genot van een drankje en hapje, met jullie kennis maken. Omdat de tijden voor de pop-up desk slots nog niet bekend zijn, zullen we in november's Echo meer informatie geven hoe laat de kennismaking borrel met ambassadeur H.E. M.M. van der Vorst zal plaats vinden. Boek 15 november alvast in je kalender.

Wij hebben genoten van het toetje. Wat dacht je van een Indonesian salad. Kijk op pagina 8 voor het recept.

Hartelijke groet,

Dee

Klaverjassen

Klaverjas club 'Ons genoeg'

We herhalen ons dringend verzoek aan alle leden, die wel eens kaarten om contact met ons op te nemen en eens langs te komen.

Je speelt maar met 8 kaarten, dus die kan je nog wel vasthouden en ieder die bridge speelt en volgens mij is dat nog wel een aantal van de leden van de society, kan het gemakkelijk leren.

We spelen iedere dinsdag om 10.30 uur in de Everglades op Marsland Road en misschien woont er wel iemand in jouw buurt die je kan meenemen. Als alternatief is er een kleine groep die ook op vrijdag klaverjast in dezelfde locatie en op dezelfde tijd en die bereid zijn je het spel (weer) te leren.

Helaas heb ik de uitslagen van de laatste maand niet ontvangen, maar die houden jullie te goed. Op 22 oktober wordt weer een labourday toernooi gehouden en we hopen op voldoende deelnemers.

Ard van der Vorst says “Hello”

Despite some classic Wellington weather during my first two weeks, I look forward to getting out and about, meeting with all the fellow Dutchies in Aotearoa New Zealand. Coming originally from Brabant I can deal with some wind and rain. Together with my husband we like to travel and enjoy some ‘gezelligheid’.

I am grateful to my predecessors Ambassadors Mira Woldberg and Rob Zaagman for their work and contributions and I will continue to move forward in strengthening the relations between both our countries. We are blessed and at your disposal with a professional Embassy staff in Wellington and the Honorary Consuls Sake Hitman in Auckland and Geordie Hooft in Christchurch. Also, I would like to pay tribute to all the dedicated volunteers of the Dutch clubs and organizations all around the country working effortlessly to showcase Dutch culture and hospitality. Thank you!

Being in New Zealand is not completely new to me. Part of my family came in the fifties and nineties to settle in your beautiful country. Leaving the Netherlands for an unknown destination was not an easy decision but offered an opportunity for a better life. After arriving, and over years of hard work, faith and dedication, their story is now a part of the overall journey to success that Dutch communities have had in New Zealand. Recently, new groups of Dutch immigrants have arrived. Many of them choosing New Zealand as their base for a more sustainable lifestyle. Along with them they have brought innovation and creativity to New Zealand, bringing a new perspective on Dutch-Kiwi collaboration with a common goal of working towards a world that works for everyone and includes all.

My work will very much focus on the Netherlands and New Zealand partnership on Climate Action. Our Embassy-team is here to learn from the achievements of New Zealand. We also would like to hear from you what you think the Dutch can do better in our collaboration with New Zealand. Obviously, we will continue to promote related trade and investments, building on scientific and research co-operation in the Agriculture and Water management. You can follow us on Facebook, Twitter and LinkedIn for news updates on our work and the progress we make.

Looking very much forward to meeting you all in the coming weeks and months.

Yours / Hartelijke groet,

Ard M.M. van der Vorst
Ambassador of the Kingdom of the Netherlands

Indonesian Salad

Karedok is the traditional Indonesian version of a vegetable salad. This simple and healthy dish calls for fresh and raw ingredients which are sliced and served with a traditional peanut sauce. The most common vegetables in karedok include cucumbers, cabbage, green beans, Thai basil, bean sprouts, and eggplant, however, other vegetables can be used as well.

The sauce is made by grinding fried peanuts together with salt, palm sugar, and chilli. The flavour of the sauce can be adjusted with other ingredients such as shrimp paste or garlic. Due to the usage of peanut sauce, karedok is often compared with another Indonesian specialty, gado-gado, but it is still distinguished by the usage of only raw ingredients.

Rex en Greta Vink – 60 jaar getrouwd

Hier gaan we dan met deel 5:

Dit wordt de laatste aflevering: het betreft een deel van de reizen die we hebben gedaan in de 60 jaar dat we getrouwd zijn en die leuk zijn om met jullie te delen.

We zijn regelmatig op vakantie in Australië geweest. Op een van die trips met Anset kregen we een "scratsie", we vulden het in en Gre won de hoofdprijs. Ze wilden die eerst niet aan haar geven omdat ze geen inwoner van Australië was, maar na een boel gehannes, kreeg ze het gelukkig toch. Anset vloog van Sydney naar Shanghai in China. Ik mocht mee voor halfgeld. Ik deed een job voor een professor die les gaf aan de Canterbury universiteit. Hij kende een professor in Shanghai, dus werden we daar heen gedirigeerd. Die man's vrouw en dochter verbleven op ons adres in Barnes Road, terwijl hij voor ons zorgde. Eerst gingen we op eigen houtje naar Peking, waar we op de Chinese Muur van een plaats naar een ander gedeelte liepen. We kwamen weinig mensen tegen, we hadden een prachtige dag.

We waren 10 dagen in China. We zagen in die korte tijd ontzettend veel. Ik zou er zonder moeite een hele avond mee vol kunnen maken.

Onze zoon Cor studeerde in Los Angeles en woonde met zijn vrouw Marie in San Diego, dus er kwamen uitnodigingen om daar ook een paar vakanties door te brengen. We deden dat met Gre's zus Lia en haar man Max. Ze hielden beiden van auto rijden, dus huurden we een auto en trokken er met z'n vieren op uit. We bezochten California, Utah, Nevada en Arizona. De eerste trip begon in Las Vegas en wij tourden via de Grand Canyon Zion, Bryce national park en Dead Valley terug naar Las Vegas. De tweede trip was naar San Francisco, Yosemite National park, White mountains, waar we de oudste bomen ter wereld hebben gezien: de Matuzela bomen. Toen verder naar de Sequia bomen die ook enorm groot zijn en via een paar andere national parks naar San Diego waar Cor en Marie woonden met hun pasgeboren zoon onze klein zoon Henry.

In september 2022 zijn we voor de laatste keer op vakantie in Nederland. We zijn uitgenodigd een reünie bij te wonen van de lagere school in Oosthuizen, waar Gre en ik op school hebben gezeten. Ik noem het onze tweede honey moon.

We zien jullie op de toneel uitvoering in november, waar ik zoals altijd weer een video opname maak.

Dutch city world's first to ban advertisements for holiday flights

SUPPLIED. The city of Haarlem in The Netherlands is banning advertisements for recreational air travel in public places.

A Dutch city has become the first in the world to ban advertisements in public places for holiday flights.

From 2024, ads relating to fossil fuel products and services will be barred from being displayed in public places in Haarlem.

That means any billboards on buses, shelters and screens promoting air travel and non-electric cars will be barred, as the city moves to address the climate crisis.

As part of the changes, Haarlem will also be to be the first city in the world to ban adverts for meat.

The UN says livestock is responsible for 14.5% of global greenhouse gases, including methane, while other studies have revealed the production of meat worldwide causes twice the pollution of production of plant-based foods.

With a population of around 160,000, Haarlem is the second Dutch city to tackle the climate issue; in 2021, Amsterdam became the world's first city to ban high-carbon adverts on its metro system, which included advertisements promoting flights and fossil fuelled cars.

The ban in Haarlem can't come into effect until 2024, due to the number of existing advertising contracts which need to be completed.

Elsewhere, France enforced a ban last month on advertising for fossil fuels, such as gasoline and diesel.

Other countries are also looking at bans on advertising fossil fuel related products such as in the UK, Australia, Canada and the EU.

De Kamer Hoorn van de V.O.C.

In de Muntstraat, genoemd naar de Westfriese Munt die hier tot 1807 heeft gestaan, staat het gebouw van de voormalige Kamer Hoorn van de Verenigde Oost-Indische Compagnie.

Het is een voormalig herenhuis dat de VOC in 1676 kocht om als kantoor dienst te doen. Daarvoor was de VOC gevestigd in het voormalige Geertenklooster aan de Nieuwstraat. Het huis werd naar links vergroot met een aanbouw. In de timpaan van dit linker bouwdeel is het monogram VOC met de H van de kamer Hoorn te zien. Dit gedeelte bevatte de vergaderruimte van de bewindhebbers. In 1810 is het gebouw in gebruik genomen door het in Hoorn gelegerde garnizoen. In 1868 is de rijks-HBS er ingetrokken. Het rechtergedeelte is in 1903 bijgebouwd naar ontwerp van de gemeente architect J. van Reijendam.

In 1911 wordt het Rijksnormaalschool, daarna bewaarschool. (Hier heb ik in 1956 op gezeten!) In 1957-1959 is het gerestaureerd en verbouwd tot politiebureau. In 1970 is de zolder in gebruik genomen door schietvereniging "de Vrijheid". Na het vertrek van de politie begin jaren tachtig is er een kinderdagverblijf in gevestigd. In 1985 is het pand in opdracht van de Gemeente Hoorn verbouwd tot woonwerkproject voor kunstenaars, met 10 woningen en 7 ateliers.

The Fairy Tale of Little Thumbie

Sometimes us translators do literal translations just because... we call it comic relief.

Here is my favourite escape from the language lab! Feel free to translate it back to Dutch!

There was once a poor woodchopper. This woodchopping, he said one day to his woman, there sits no dry bread in it I work myself an accident the whole day, but you and our twelve children have not to eat. I see the future dark in, his woman agreed. We must try to fit a sleeve on it, the woodchopper resumed; I have a plan: tomorrow we shall go on step with the children, and then, in the middle of the wood we'll leave them to their fate over. His woman almost went off her little stick when she heard this. What is there with you on the hand? She cried, aren't you good sob? But the woodchopper wasn't brought off his piece by her wailing, he gave no shrink. It cannot differ to me what you think, he said. There sits nothing else on, tomorrow we leave them in the wood. Little Thumbie, the youngest son, had listened off his parents' conversation. The next morning before day and dew he went out and filled his pockets with pebbles. During the walk into the wood, he knew unmarked-up to drop them one by one. Then the parents told the children to sprockle some wood and shined the plate. When the parents didn't come for the day anymore, the children understood that they had been left in the stitch. Soon the waterlanders appeared. But Thumbie said: don't sit down by your packages, I will sorrow for it that we all get home wholeskins. Thank be the pebbles, he was able to find hiw way back. By God, the parents said as they turned up, how have you ragged him that? No art on, said Thumbie and explained what he had done. If you want to be rid of us you will have to stand up a bit earlier. And that is just what the parents did. This time there were no pebbles on to pass, all Thumbie had was a piece of dry bread. He decided that his bread there then but must believe to it. He left a trail of breadcrumbs, but he didn't have it in the holes that they were made into soldiers by the birds. His parents departed with the Northern sun, as on the day before, but this time Thumbie soon touched rid f the trail. What now? Good counsel was expensive. The sun was already under, it was raining pipestems and crying stood Little Thumbie nearer than laughing. At last he saw a tiny light through the trees; it turned out to be a house. The lady who stood them to word was a giantess. She gave them what to eat, but Little Thumbie received the feeling that something wasn't fluff. He had understood that the giantess' man, the giant, was a people-eater who would see no bone in devouring them. If we do pass up, he thought, we shall be the cigar; as soon as they saw their chance clean, they took the legs and smeared him. When the giant came home, he sniffed the air and bellowed: I smell people flesh, woman, why have you let them go there from through? Bring me my seven-league boots, I go them behind after. He was about to haul the children in, but wonder above wonder, just then he decided to lie down in order snap a little owl.

Shoot up, help me, Thumbie said to his brothers as soon as the giant lay there pipping, we must see to make him his seven-league boots off handy. He squeezed him like an old thief, but they went ahead and knew him to draw his boots out. Now we must make that we come away Little Thumbie said. He put on the boots and quickly made himself out of the feet, carrying his brothers along. Also, he had a chance to roll the giants pockets and pick in all his gold pieces. How have you boxed that before each other? Cried Thumbie's parents in amazement when he showed up. It was a pod-skin, said Little Thumbie modestly. I may be small, but I stand my little man. And look I have also brought a lot of poon. We used not to be able to allow ourselves billy-goats leaps, but now we have our sheep on the dry. We will never come anything too short again, I shall be able to buy myself a nail-suit at last, and a woody-stringy. And I a soup-dress, cried his mother, they are you of it these days. Great, his father exulted, I shall buy us a motorcar.

That afternoon he came riding to the fore in a sled of a wagon. I seem to be having trouble riding straight out, Thumbie's father complained. Thank you the cuckoo, his wife said, you have a piece in your collar. You have him around again. I shall stop you in bed. The next day all the children were stuck in the clothes and mother looked a cleanliness in her new soup-dress. After that, they moved to The Hague, where they bought a chest of a house on the New Explanation and lived happily ever after.
